WRITTEN OPINION OF THE INTERNATIONAL PRELIMINARY EXAMINING AUTHORITY (SEPARATE SHEET)

International application No.

PCT/IL2005/000086

Re Item V

Reasoned statement with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

Claims 1-23,27 as filed with the letter dated 07.11.2005 appear to satisfy the requirements of novelty, inventive step and industrial applicability.

Non Unity

New independent claim 24, although novel over the prior art cited, is not unitary with claims 1 and 25. The reason for this is that there are no technical features common to both claim 1 (or claim 25) and claim 24, and there is no common inventive concept linking the two. In other words, the apparatus of claim 24 could be carried out in/with an instrument which is NOT the same as that of either claim 1 or claim 25

New independent claim 25 is also non unitary with claim 1 and claim 24 following the same reasoning as that for claim 24. Dependent claim 26 is hence also non-unitary. In addition to the non-unity objection, claim 25 is also not inventive over prior arts D1 and D2. The latter, in fact, differ from claim 25 only in that they do not mention superelastic materials or shape memory alloys for the longitudinal element. These are however a simple matter of design choice available to the skilled person when designing instruments for cleaning of root canals, and the benefits from using these materials are easily foreseeable in advance.

Treatment of the human body

New claims 28-30 correspond to original claims 37-39 for which no search was carried out because they are a clear violation of Rule 39.1 PCT.
